HOMEY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922

Doesn't it seem fine to get into your boat, lie face up in the sunlight an' drift down the stream of life without a care in the world? You pass hundreds of rocks, the eddies switch the boat from side to side an' get you by safely, maybe with here an' there a little scratch but not enough to set you worryin'. An' then you get it. Bump, an' over the falls you go. Boy, what a smash! If you have any thinkin' apparatus left you see where you tried to beat the game an' it didn't work. Old Cap Nature says you've got to take hold of the oars an' row up stream if you want to land safely. Sometimes you've got to row hard to make headway, but you might as well tackle the job, because there's no room for argument. Every river ends on the rocks or in the mudbanks and that's where the fellow lands who drifts down the stream.

suits at $15. See them.—The Walsh

In the movies a hundred per cent of the men in bed room scenes wear pajamas. In real life ninety-five per cent of them wear night gowns.
